3. Report (min. 250 words, max. 500 words, will be published on the ECA web site)

The school included a roughly 50/50 combination of lectures and hands-on workshops. Three hours of workshops were held each morning, with two sessions conducted in parallel. The state-of-the-art computational tools were represented in the workshops dedicated to magnetic crystallography. Workshop presenters delivered tutorial instructions, both introductory and advanced tutorial exercises were provided.

The participants (57 PhD students and post docs) and presenters came from 17 different country affiliations. 40% of the attendees were women.

A survey provided comment on the quality of the program and it achieved most of its objectives (score 89/100).
